Guest speakers Blake McDonald and Caitlyn O'Dwyer from THE VIRGINIA DEPARTMENT OF HISTORIC RESOURCES

Learn about Federal and Virginia tax credit programs for both the restoration of qualifying residential and commercial properties.

*How do the tax credits work? What buildings and projects are eligible?
What is the process? How can these credits and your restoration benefit you, your property value, and the economy of the community?*

Town of Port Royal is working with Virginia Department of Historic Resources to update the state and national registers of historic places for the Town. In doing so, the Town has provided its citizens a major step toward a potential tax credit for the restoration of their building. Building restoration increases property values. New and existing businesses, shops, and restaurants will benefit from the historic setting, the increase in tourism, and the opportunity to prosper with the Town. . Port Royal has a rich story to tell our citizens and visitors. Combined with the natural setting of the Rappahannock River and Wildlife refuge, restoration of the old buildings in Port Royal will enable the Town to realize its unique and historically significant potential.

Successful restoration projects Old Port Royal School and Port Royal Medical Museum.

Restoration project in progress, the Murray House, circa 1750.
